

Wound

By

Dr. Hashim S H Behbehani

According to the Oxford Dictionary, the word “WOUND” has three distinctive meanings.

- 1) Injury done to living tissue by a deep cut or heavy blow.
- 2) Pain inflicted to ones feelings.
- 3) Injury done to ones reputation.

Therefore, in a direct sense, “WOUND” has total freedom to inflict pain on any of God’s living creatures, regardless of whether it is human; animal; mammal or insect.

Moreover, “WOUND” can also remain forever in one’s inner sole, in which case “WOUND” can also be part of one’s memories.

“WOUND” of the heart is “WOUND” of history. For that reason, DICTATORS are always remembered as the “WOUNDS” of history.

“WOUND” also has a metamorphic meaning. For it can be said that a “WOUND” will always remain in the heart.

“WOUND” can also be inherited, and history always remember those brutal DICTATORS who inflicted pain and “WOUND” on humanity.